

Biography

Joshua T. Andrzejewski

Josh is a graduate from Elizabethtown College with a double major in Communications and Religious Studies. He was editor-in-chief, assistant editor and layout editor of the school paper, The Etonnian.

Josh is currently attending Union Theological Seminary and Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Va., where he is pursuing Masters Degrees in both Divinity and Christian Education.

This summer Josh worked as a reporter for the Bucks County Courier Times.

Kim de Bourbon

Kim is a journalist with 30 years experience in daily community newspapers, including 10 years as executive editor of the Pocono Record in northeast Pennsylvania.

Kim became interested in journalism at Stroudsburg High School, and then worked on the Bloomsburg State College paper as a reporter, copy editor, photo editor and sports editor. She began working at the local newspaper as a reporter while still in college, and was hired full-time as wire editor upon graduation. She served as inaugural entertainment editor when the paper started a new weekly entertainment section, and later served as the paper's night desk editor, editing copy and laying out pages.

Kim moved to Connecticut to begin her career in newspaper management. She was promoted from assistant news editor to suburban editor and eventually to managing editor/news. In 1997, she returned to Pennsylvania to become executive editor.

Currently, she is working as executive director of the Pennsylvania Freedom of Information Coalition, a new group started by journalists and lawyers to help citizens obtain public records and keep Pennsylvania government open.

Joe Gambino

Joe is a senior elementary education major with a minor in communication/journalism at Shippensburg University. He is the editor-in-chief for The Slate, SU's student run newspaper. Prior to serving as the editor-in-chief, Joe was the photography editor for three years. He enjoys working for the student newspaper because he finds that it provides a challenging yet rewarding atmosphere for him to focus his talents and further develop his skills. And of course, it's just plain fun!

Bob Heisse

Bob Heisse is in his fifth year as executive editor and vice president of the Centre Daily Times.

He is serving as president of the Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors and also is a member of the Pennsylvania Associated Press Managing Editors.

Biography

A Penn State journalism graduate, Bob is a member of the College of Communications Alumni Board and the board of the Centre Communities Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Heisse previously worked at The Harrisburg Patriot-News, where he oversaw state and local coverage, and at the Bucks County Courier Times in suburban Philadelphia.

He is a native of Lancaster and now lives in State College.

Teri Henning

Teri Henning is the Pennsylvania Newspaper Association's general counsel. She provides legal services to the PNA, MANSI, and the PNA Foundation. She also provides legal advice to Pennsylvania newspapers on legal and legislative matters affecting newspapers, files amicus briefs in court cases significant to Pennsylvania newspapers, and conducts member education seminars.

Before joining the Association, she taught in the clinical programs at the Dickinson School of Law of the Pennsylvania State University and worked in private practice in commercial litigation and environmental law.

Teri graduated cum laude from Bucknell University, with a B.A. degree in psychology. She received her J.D. degree, cum laude, from Georgetown University Law Center.

Erin James

Erin attended Penn State University and was the editor-in-chief of The Daily Collegian, an independent student newspaper. She majored in journalism and is currently working at The Evening Sun in Hanover, Pa.

Lauren Lee

Lauren Lee is the Pennsylvania Newspaper Association Foundation Director. She is responsible for cultivating relationships with the newspaper industry, academia, the grant-making community, the non-profit community, the national newspaper trade organizations and the many newspaper and foundation groups in Pennsylvania and in government.

Before joining PNA, Lauren worked for MBNA in Delaware. She brings marketing, grant writing and general management skills to the Foundation. She is a graduate of Carleton University in Ottawa, Ontario and SUNY.

Kim Strong

Kim Strong is the director of custom publications at The Patriot-News and previously served as The Patriot's assistant managing editor. She is a Penn State graduate, former police and court reporter and former adviser for The Daily Collegian at Penn State. Before working at The Patriot, she was the writing coach and editorial page editor at the York Daily Record.

She has edited five history books, won numerous journalism awards and is a past president of the Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors.